

Pentestmonkey research

Pentestmonkey is a site that many Pentesters access to get cheat sheets and understand vulnerabilities and fixes. It has not been updated recently but the data and information is still relevant today.

In this exercise, access <http://pentestmonkey.net/>

Search for Linux and read two or three articles to get familiar with the type of information that is available. Some information may be too technical however this exercise is to share resources that may be helpful in understanding and fixing vulnerabilities in the future.